THE DIRTY ONION BOILERMAKER CLUB

AVAILABLE
SUNDAY - THURSDAY
ALL DAY

The boilermaker originates from the USA and was popularised by 19th century steelworkers in Pennsylvania who drank to wash away factory life. It was traditionally taken as a whiskey shot, chased with a beer. Here in Northern Ireland, we prefer to take our time and appreciate whiskey and beer, what's the rush?

Here are a few of the recommended pairings we have carefully chosen. We have selected a range of Irish and American beers and whiskies/ys. Enjoy our Irish twist on the Boilermaker; an American drinking tradition.

~ PLEASE CHOOSE BEER

FULCRUM

(LISBURN, NI)

Fulcrum is a smooth wheat beer with a clean citrus finish. We feel this combines perfectly with the smooth mouth feel and spiced fruit tones of Redbreast

ROWLOCK IPA

(LISBURN, NI)

Rowlock is a great introduction to IPA. It is brewed with 10% wheat for a smoother mouth-feel and is well balanced with a subtle hop flavour. This balance matches one of the best pot still whiskies around, Green Spot, with it's subtle apple and spice flavours

BELFAST BLACK

(KILKEEL, NI)

Jameson Caskmates is aged in stout-seasoned casks, so naturally we tried this combination and it works beautifully. Belfast Black has great roasted malt and dark chocolate flavours which combines well with the Caskmates

FRANCISCAN WELLS REBEL RED (CORK, IRELAND)

We love the Caskmates so much we wanted to pair it with another beer for the non-stout drinker.

Franciscan Wells stout is used to season the casks that Caskmates is aged in, so this pairing already had links. The Rebel Red Ale is biscuity and malty. The Caskmates with its sweet, butterscotch finish counteracts the Rebel's flavour

BELFAST ALE (KILKEEL, NI)

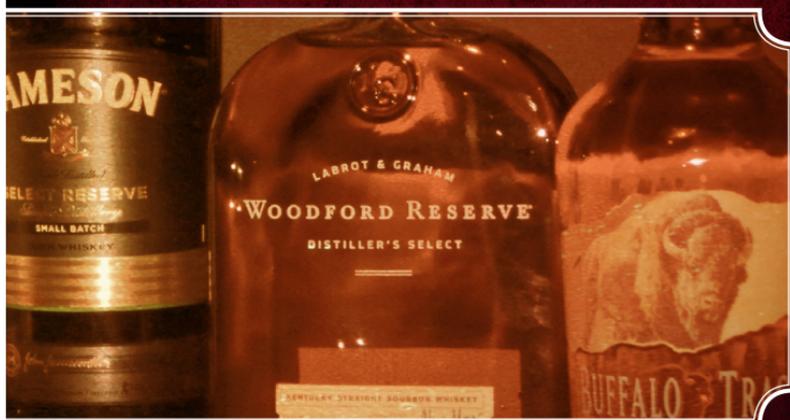

Belfast Ale is a fruity, smooth ale with a slight bitterness. Woodford Reserve, with its sweet and creamy texture and cereal finish is a good match for the bitterness in the ale

FARMAGEDDON IPA (COMBER, NI)

Now for the hop-heads out there. Farmageddon brings plenty of hops with strong citrus flavours. This complex taste partners nicely with the sweet, sherry notes from the Jameson Black Barrel.

BROOKLYN LAGER (NEW YORK, USA)

We wanted to pair a great traditional American beer with a solid, classic bourbon. Brooklyn Lager is hard to beat, full and rich on the palate with bittering hops and savoury depth of flavour. Buffalo Trace has a complementing full flavour of brown sugar and sweet oak

THE DIRTY ONION
WELCOMES YOU TO ONE OF BELFAST'S OLDEST BUILDINGS...

This site was originally constructed in the late 1600's as a warehouse and first used as a spirits bonded warehouse in 1921. The bond, known as STACK 'N' (The N refers to North, as in the north side of Waring Street, number 42) and was operated by Edward Dillon Bonders until the company moved to larger premises in 1991.

The company still functions and is a subsidiary of Irish Distillers as the warehousing arm of Dillon Bass. Edward Dillon Bonders was established in 1847 and warehoused many famous brands including Jameson Irish Whiskey, Hennessy Cognac and Sandeman Ports and sherries.

Stack 'N' was used to store Jameson in barrels and crates, and during this period tens of thousands of bottles of Jameson passed through these doors. We are proud to honour this association with the inclusion of our Jamesons barrel-man statue in the beer garden.

We hope this menu lets you appreciate some of our favourite drinks and the story this 17th century building has to tell.
